

Top Strong Dollar Plays

The US Dollar has been making headlines over the last few days for its strength, which has been rare over the last decade. When the dollar is strong, companies that generate most or all of their business inside of the US benefit, at the expense of the big international US-based companies.

We searched through our International Revenues Database that is available to all yearly Premium and Premium Plus members and found all of the Russell 1,000 companies that generate all of their revenues inside the US (or North America). We then analyzed the price charts of all of these companies and found the ones that we believe currently look the best from a technical perspective. The sixteen stocks shown below are the ones that made our list of the top strong dollar plays. They already stand to benefit based on the recent strength in the dollar, and if the dollar's surge continues, they obviously stand to benefit even more. Price charts for all of the stocks are included on pages two and three. As always, we recommend using these lists in conjunction with your own research.
